A DRAMATIC RELIC.

Representation of a London Theater in Shakespeare's Time. An interesting dramatic relic has just been sent to the British Museum on a loan been sent to the British Museum on a loan by the University of Utrecht, says the Lon-don Times. It is a representation and description of the Swan Theater in South-wark, in 1596. The picture was discovered wark, in 1896. The picture was discovered in a manuscript work in the Utrecht library. The author was one Van Buchell, who filled this commonplace book with notes on various subjects. Among others is the picture of the Swan, with letter-press on the opposite page. The former is described as drawn ex observation bibus Londonensibus Lohenres De Witt and experts of doubt in Johannes De Witt, and a point of doubt in connection with it is whether the picture Johannes De Witt, and a point of doubt in connection with it is whether the picture was actually copied from one drawn by De Witt, or whether it was drawn by Van Buchell from oral descriptions by De Witt. The latter was a Dutch scholar and prebendary of the sixteenth century, who traveled widely in foreign countries (probably because he was a Roman Catholic, for whom Holland would not be comfortable just then), and noted what he saw. The theater is represented as containing three galleries, one above the other, with a tiled roof above the top one, but open to the sky in the center. The stage is supported on wooden posts, painted like marble, "so that," remarks De Witt, "it might deceive the most sagacious." It is believed to have been removable, so that the amphitheater might be free whenever it was wanted for bull or bear baiting. The greenroom is represented as an erection in the space behind the stage and apparently open to the public view. De Witt described it to Van Buchell as built solidly of flints and possessing accommodation for 8,000 persons. It is possible that a large number could stand in the amphitheater on a level with the stage, in no other way can we account for this surprising statement. He says there were four theaters in Lona level with the stage, in no other way can we account for this surprising statement. He says there were four theaters in London which derived their names from various signs and each had performances every day. The two principal ones were on the south side of the river and were called the Rose and the Swan—Shakespeare's Globe did not then exist—and there were two in the north in Bishopsgate street. A fifth was used for bull and bear baiting, and according to De Witt. "presents a most dewas used for bull and bear batting, and according to De Witt "presents a most delightful spectacle." The best, he says, was the Swan, of which he gives a picture, because of its accommodation and its architecture, which seemed to him to be a survival of the Roman amphitheater, and it is because of this latter circumstance that Van Budell preserved the picture. In the Van Buchell preserved the picture. In the play in progress on the stage two ladies are in conversation, and some one enters to them, probably a messenger; but it is prob-able that this is a fancy scene and comes from no Elizabethan drama. The drawing and letter-press were brought to light by Dr. Carl Gaedertz, who has published with Mueller, of Bremen, a fac-simile of both, with discussions the which the discussions the subject in the subj with a discussion on the subject in a pam phlet entitled, "Zur Kentniss der Alten-glischen Buhne," which is intended as a

How an Eccentric Illinois Farmer Woodd and Won His Wife. Jacob Strawn, of Jacksonville, Ill., was during his life-time the largest farmer in Illinois, and a very eccentric man. The cirounstances of his marriage were as follows:
Outside of Jacksonville, a couple of miles, perhaps, there lived quite a respect-able family. This family employed a servant girl. Graceful and neat in the extreme, and possessing a very fair share of intelligence his girl was a match for whomsoever might take her unto himself. Jacob saw this flower, and determined to possess it. One day he rode up to the door of the resiwhip. The lady of the house answered his summons, and immediately upon her mak-ing her appearance, Jacob asked for the servant girl.

The servant girl came. Jacob said:

"I want a wife and I have picked you out as the most proper person for that position I can possibly find. I've never spoken to you before, but then that makes no difference. I'll give you one week to decide."

The girl blushed and was dumbfounded.

Jacob mounted his horse and rode away.

The girl inquired into Mr. Strawn's character and standing, and was advised by those with whom she lived to accept the offer of his hand. Punctually, a week later, Jacob rode up to the door and knocked again with his whip and asked:

his whip and asked:

"Is it no or yes?"
Blushingly the girl answered in a low tone, but quite distinctly:

"Yes."

"Well," said Jacob, "let's see; we'll get married the day after to-morrow, Wednesday. Here's some money to buy a wedding outfit," and he threw her a purse containing a thousand dollars.

ing a thousand dollars.

The couple did get married on Wednesday, and no happier pair, during their life-time, was to be met with in the State of

COVERED WITH GOLD.

The Great Sheve Dagong Pagoda in the City of Rangoon. Here are the first impressions of Burmah, from a high official, dated from Rangoon says the London World:

"We got into the Rangoon river early or Sunday. The banks are very low. Nothing to see until the sunlight lights up the gilded dome of the great Sheve Dagong Pagoda, which dominates the city. The days are hot, and the nights cool and pleasant. "Yesterday morning we went to the great pagoda—the golden temple on three hills. You ascend to it by a covered stairway, on either side of which are stalls kept by women for the sale of toys, dolls, candles, incense, etc. At the top of the stair is a payed court, in the center the pagoda, 250 incense, etc. At the top of the stair is a paved court, in the center the pagoda, 250 feet high, covered from base to topmost pinnacle with thick gold.

"All around are quaint buildings, some holding figures of Buddha, some containing bells of enormous size. About all these a gay and merry crowd—men, women and children—talking, laughing, eating, drinking, praying; all dressed in good bright colors, good-tempered and thoroughly enjoying themselves.

"No dirt, no scowls, but a light-hearted, happy crowd whom it was a pleasure to contemplate, and from whom one got only friendly looks and cheerful courtesy. No place that I have seen in the Indian Empire has pleased and interested me as much.

"The bride of a Burmese wedding yesterday was a pretty, graceful girl, and as happy as any English bride. All this is unlike linda. The women enjoy great freedom, are much more industrious than the men and are respected accordingly."

WHEN FORTUNES COME.

Statement That Wealth in America Is Acquired by Men of Forty.

One of the brightest young men in public life said to a New York Sun man the other day that he was going to make his everlasting fortune some day when he grew tired of politics. "But there is plenty of time for that," said he. "Do you know that time for that," said he. "Do you know that it is almost a rule in this country that men do not make their fortunes until they are forty years old or older? The grand exception to the rule is Jay Gould, but the contemporary fortunes were nearly all made when their founders were at or beyond middle age. Commodore Vanderbilt, John Jacob Astor, A. T. Stewart, and all the others prove what I say."

others prove what I say."

The reporter to whom this was said turned over the pages of the biographies and other works of reference at his hand, and found enough in them to warrant the assertion that at least a great many rich Americans have been beyond forty years of age when they have accrued riches. Certainly the richest body of men in the land, the United States Senate, is composed of elderly men; but in the lower house of Congress we see millionaires who look scarce-gress we see millionaires who look scarcely old enough for the rule.

Alexander T. Ste wart came here in 1823 from Ireland, where he was born in 1808. He opened a little linen store on Br and gathered wealth very slowly at first, as most other men had done. He was prudent, shrewd and original, and gradually became a heavy importer; but he was forty-five years old when he became able to put up the first of the two great stores in which he afterward transacted his business.

Henry Clews is an example. He spent his early manhood as a clerk, and when the war broke out and found him a broker in a small way he began to make money. He and his partner, Mr. Livermore, who retired at the close of the war with half a million, jobbed in certificates of indebtedness, and laid the basis of the wealth which Clews afterward accrued. He failed, but further demonstrated the rule by making his way over again, as Henry Villard has done.

Henry Villard is about fifty-five years old. He came here from Germany at twenty years of age, and sold subscription books at first, then became an irregular writer for the press. He studied law later, but gave that up and adopted journalism as his profession. He was forty-one years old when, in 1874, he began the great Oregon railway operation that made him wealthy. Nine years later, when the famous golden spike was driven through a Northern Pacific railroad sleeper he was worth $5,000,000. He improverished himself in trying to maintain the value of his property, and went under. Next, at more than fifty years of age, he rose again as a financier.

Warner Miller is fifty years old. Be-ginning in the humblest way, he managed to organize a mill company, and worked six-teen hours a day for ten years to make his fortune. He was past forty when his bank accounts showed him that he could afford to take the world more easily. He is a millionaire now. Levi P. Morton is about sixty-three years old. Twenty-five years ago, when he was thirty-eight or thirty-nine, he founded his banking house. He was fifty-one when his wealth enabled him to devote a part of his time to public life. His great stroke was made when he established his London house in 1868, and soon afterward went into the syndicate for funding the United States debt. He was past forty-three then. Charles Crocker was past forty when he began to be a millionaire. Edward F. Jones, the rich scale maker and Lieutenant-Governor of this State, was born in 1828. He began his business career at the close of the war, and was long past forty when he became rich. Henry B. Courtney, the marble millionaire, now dead, started with fifty dollars in 1853, when thirty-three years old. He was beyond middle life when he got his pile.

John B. Slawson, the car-fare box inventor, was twenty-five years old when he went to New Orleans in 1840 from this There he slowly made his way up ward. But for the war he would have pushed his invention at forty-six years of age, but he had to wait, and he was past fifty age, but he had to war, and he was past inty when his big money began to pour in. His friend Stephenson, the horse car builder, also a millionaire, had to wait for middle age to get great riches. So did the elder Bennett, of the Herald, so did Hon. Oswald Ottendorfer, and so did the late Marshall O.

Jay Gould's early life was a failure, but this phase of it was very short. He was born in 1831, and went into speculating in railroad stock in 1859, when he was only twenty-eight years old. He was very successful, and made use of the war, when it broke out, to give large returns on small or shrewd speculations. His fortieth year found him, in his present opinion, only starting in life, but the world already knew him as a master money maker, for he had been more than three years president of the Erie railroad, and his associate, Fisk, had startled Amarica with black the control of the Erie railroad, and his associate, Fisk, of the Eric railroad, and his associate, Fisk, had startled America with his share of the partnership. Samuel J. Tilden made his first considerable money as a lawyer, but he was more than forty years old before he put other aspirations aside for the time and began that devotion to his profession which was quickly distinguished by his connection with the greatest law causes of the day. He was forty-one when, in 1855, he was defeated as a candidate for Attorney-General of the State. After that came his greatest legal triumphs, and after them his still greater financial operations.

The Standard Oil fortunes nearly all prove the rule. Mr. Rogers made his share of that pile while younger than forty years old, but Messrs. Rockefeller, Starbuck and old, but Messrs. Rockefeller, Starbuck and Flagler were beyond that age when they grew rich. In Philadelphia, George W. Childs is probably an exception. He is only sixty years old, and has been rich more than twenty years; but John Wanamaker only began the making of his fortune in 1876, when he was thirty-eight. He was nearer fifty than forty when he became really rich.

Augustin Daly is fifty-two years old. He was thirty-four when he began his brave struggle with the dramatic company that is now world famous. Wealth did not reach him till he was beyond forty. The ministry contains numerous examples that are to contains numerous examples that are to the point. Rev. Dr. John Hall was thirtythe point. Rev. Dr. John Hall was thirtyeight years old when he came to America on the mission that introduced him here.
He was thirty-nine when on his return to Europe he received and accepted the flattering offer that made him the recipient of a salary which professional men consider the making of a fortune. Rev. Dr. Talmage was as old when he began to feel comfortable; so was Beecher; so was Dr.
Parton.

THE Journal claims that it is all a dream to imagine that the Reduction Works are injured by the State's action in tapping the pond created by their dam. The works are already injured, actually injured, financially and in every other way. They have been put to great expense in fighting law suits at a time when every dollar they could raise was needed to perfect their works and pay for ore, fuel, materials, etc. The reputation of the works has been injured abroad and suspicion created which has turned trade into other channels. We know the works are in good hands and we expect to see them come out all right, but the company has been hindered, harrassed and injured by the very party that should have been its friend and protector. It pays taxes for the benefits of a state government and those taxes have been used to damage and ruin it.

No such a course has ever been taken, even by rival water companies, in this State or on this coast. No set of men ever thought of such a cheeky and unscupulous proposition as going on the opposite bank and tapping another man's dam, and we claim that, even if there is a technicality in the law which permits it, it is indecent and morally dishonest for any one to

A WASHINGTON dispatch says that the public debt statement for March will show a net decrease of about $2,500,000. Previous payments, under the call of April last, amount to $127,282,100, of which $51,387,300 were 4 1-2 bonds. Assuming that the March payments were made in about the same proportion, between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000 of the 4 per cents were paid in March. Before this pay- THE ment was made the amount of 4 1-2 per cents outstanding was estimated at $181,000,000. This amount is now reduced to $173,000,000 er thereabouts. This class of bonds mature in September, 1891, about two years and a half from the present time. If purchases amount to as much on an average for the next two years as for March this year, the 4 1-2 bonds will all be in the Treasury before they are due. A continuation of the same policy will wipe out the 1907 bonds before they mature. The possible flaw in this calculation is that we may have to issue new bonds before the old ones have matured.

By the provisions of an Act of the last Legislature, approved March 9, 1889, the Commissioners of this county can allow for a deputy or deputies for the County Clerk and Auditor such compensation as they may deem necessary, not exceeding four hundred dollars each per year, and they may allow the County Treasury such compensation for extra help during tax time and for watching the Treasurer's office as they may deem proper. This will necessitate the corder and Clerk, should the Commissioners think that they require the help, and the same be paid for under the law as it now is. Both under the law as it now is. A Court-Martial-The Samoan

WASHINGTON, April 11.-The Courtmartial to try Captain Armes for conduct unbecoming an officer met this morning. In response to the question whether he had any objection to the composition of the Court, Captain Armes replied in the negative, but suggested that the cart had been placed before the horse—that not he, but Captain Burke and Colonel Gibson, who made the charges against him, should be standing upon trial. He referred to Colonel Barr as an officer who has been Secretary of War for Secretary Lincoln. The Court took a

He slipped away from London the night before he was wanted. He alleges that the agent of the Times continued to urge make disclosures against Parnell, and finally he set systematically to "work" them and, after getting all the money out of them he could, skipped to France and then to this country.

No Wore Commissions.

This was brought about upon the re-moval of S. F. Pearson as Chairman of the Passenger Committee. Looks Like a Dismissal. Washington, April 11.—Secretary Noble, in a letter to the Attorney General, has requested that the United States Attorney for Montana to be directed to suspend all action, civil or criminal, against the Missoula Mercantile Company, formerly the Montana Improvement Company, and the of-war in the harbor at Apia, and who was among the saved, has received a communication from the Navy Department under date of the 9th inst., in mended by the United States District Attorney.

The amount of lumber involved is over 40,000,000 feet, besides a large amount of cordwood and railroad ties This action was taken, it is understood, upon information that will be extremely difficult, if not altogether impossible, for the Government at this late day to secure sufficient evidence to maintain these suits.

He is also a fleet runner and an expert boxer. In San Francisco he gained the reputation of being the most expert and successful "climber," or second story burglar in the city. The following geese story is from Grass Yalley, Cal.: a heavy fog settled over the city Thursday night and myriads of wild geese hovered over the town. They were lost in the fog and attracted by the electric lights, many of them coming into the streets many of them coming into the streets. The heavens were literally filled with the migratory birds and their noise could be heard for miles. Brush fires were kindled on the banks of the town reservoir by hunters. After the electric lights were extinguished the birds were lured to the water by the fires and many of them were killed. Such a flight of wild geese was never seen there before.

HOW SAFES ARE BROKEN.

An Authority in Burgiany, Gives a Few In-structive Points.

The Boston Herald gives an interesting account by a Pittsburgh authority in the burgiar's art:

burgiar's art:
There are in this country just about an even score of men whom no bank vault or safe, however strong, can resist. To reasure society, I will say that more than half of these are safe behind prison bars. Safe-breakers have more than kept pace with improvements in safes, including time locks, chilled ateel chests of eight or nine thicknesses and electric protective attachments. Their tools are made by some of the finest mechanics and inventive geniuses of the world. A full kit of the most approved modern safe-worker's tools costs about $8,000. even score of men whom no bank vault or 85,000.

The modern safe burglar is an exceedingly keen, intelligent man. He can open a safe having all the modern improvements in from ten minutes to two hours without the aid of explosives, and by only slightly defacing it. Sometimes he leaves scarcely

A first class modern safe, whether large or small, generally has double outside and inside doors with a steel chest in the bot-tom, forming really a safe within a safe, the inside one being the stronger. The outside door is usually either "stuffed" or "skeleton." The inside one is made of eight or nine sheets, of different temper, of the finest steel. These sheets are bolted the finest steel. These sheets are bolted together with conical bolts, having left-hand threads, after which the heads of the bolts are cut off, leaving what is virtually a solid piece of steel, which no drill can penetrate. The best locks are of the combination type, with time-lock attachment. In both cities and towns safes containing the most valuables have an electric alarm attached. Any tempering with it will compare the containing the most valuables have an electric alarm attached. attached. Any tampering with it will com-municate the fact to the owners or the safe's guardian, which in cities is either an electric protective bureau or a central poelectric protective bureau or a central po-lice station. Weeks, and sometimes even months, are spent in putting up a job of magnitude, and often a number of smaller jobs are done to carry out one where the proceeds may run up into the tens of thou-sands of dollars.

Keys are fitted to every door which stands between the street and the bank vault by means of a thin sheet of brass, as near as possible the same size as the keyhole, and covered with a thin coat of carbon, which may be applied with a match. A dozen entrances may have to be made to the bank before it is finally robbed. A key is fitted first to the outer door. This course is continued until keys are had of every door leading to the vault. Having the watchman and officials of the bank down fine, one of the last things to do is to select fine, one of the last things to do is to select a favorable night.

Then the bank burglar proper appears.
He has usually three assistants. The gang never appears until the night of the rob-bery, and then not till eleven or twelve o'clock. If there is a watchman, his habits and disposition have been carefully noted, and, having access to the bank by keys, it is an easy matter to surprise and overpower him. A "crow" is next planted outside, or in an upper window, if there be one, to give notice, by means of signals or a cord reaching to the workers, of the approach of patrolmen or chance passers by. A regular code of signals is used, telling when to cease operations and seek cover, and when to resume work. Next is brought into use the simplest and yet strongest and most complete tool for the purpose. It is six inches in length and two inches in diameter at one end, tapering to nothing at the other. It is pear shaped, and a thread extends from end to end. It screwed home it exerts a spreading force of many tons. This tool, "the persuader," is inserted in the most minute crack or drill inserted in the most minute crack or drill hole, and, properly blocked at the right time, will force the strongest safe door open with a sound no louder than an ordinary fire-cracker will make. The outer and inner doors open, if there be a time lock on the chest, a small dynamite cartridge is placed opposite, a detonating fuse lighted and the outer door closed. The jarring caused by the explosion, which makes a caused by the explosion, which makes a noise scarcely as loud as a pistol shot, dis-arrange the works of the time lock, which runs down and is useless, the clock running down with exactly a clock's sound when it is doing the same. The heavy outer door of the vault being closed, scarcely an audible sound reaches the street

When drilling is necessary a light, compact machine, which fits the combination pact machine, which rapidly drills a small hole above the water rim of the combination dial plate, is used. A small steel broach is then inserted and he combination knob turned until the tumblers are brought into position, thus permitting the "dog" or bar to drop. A turn of the handle shoots the bolts back and the door swings open.

If the operators find on entering the vault that the steel chest is an improved one, they then proceed to "strip" it. Sheet after sheet is taken off until the works are exposed. This is done by using a "crow," which is sectional—that is, it may be extended or contracted, as may be necessary. To an ordinary observer the "crow" looks like the bar which holds the "manhole" like the bar which holds the "manhole" plate of a steam boiler in place, and is worked on precisely the same principle.

Should it be necessary to "wedge" a safe open, a modified form of the old "drag" is used. It is a light but rigid and strong steel bar, sectional, as to suit different sized safes, and for ease in transportation, which clamps the outer side of the safe. Through the bar is run a screw-threaded bolt, with a ball joint at one end for a re-ceiving wedge. On the other end is worked a railroad wrench, used by track hands for a rairoad wrench, used by track hands for tightening rails, and which can be procured from any railroad section-house. With wedging and blocking, no door can resist this instrument. Sometimes a miniature railroad "jack," such as engineers carry, is substituted. A heavy cleat is firmly fastened in proper position and placed on the floor. The wedge in the crack, the "jack" in place, the result is but a question of time.

Never was there a more healthful and health ministering literature than that which Scott gave to the world, says Andrew D. White in Scribner's Magazine. To go back to it from Flaubert, and Daudet, and Tolstoi is like listening to the song of the lark after the shricking passion of the midnight pianoforte—nay, it is like coming out of the glare and heat and reeking vapor of a palace ball into a grove in the first light and music and breezes of the morning. It is not for nothing that so many thousands have felt toward Scott a deep personal gratitude, which few, if any, other writers of English fiction have ever awakened. which Scott gave to the world, says Andrew D. White in Scribner's Magazine. To

Dr. F. Park Lewis spoke recently, says the Buffalo Courier, upon weak eyes and near-sighted people. He stated that while people with near-sighted eyes might show no loss of sight for years, still near-sighted eyes should be tre ated with care. The best light for the eyes was sunlight. A good light must be strong, white and steady. The heat of artificial light was then considered. Sunlight has the least heat rays; electric light came next; kerosene and gas were last and so the worst for the eyes. He closed by stating that in reading the back should be to the light, the eyes should be shaded, and never be used when tired. One should not read with an uncertain light nor on the cars.

HE IDENTIFIED HIMSELF.

How Senator Culiom Worked His Way Into a Convention Hall. Senator Cullom met a newspaper man here to-day, writes a Washington corre-spondent, who recalled to his mind a cu-rious incident of the National convention of 1880, in which both took part. Cullom was then Governor of Illinois, and the newspaper man was a keeper of one of the inner doors at the convention. When they met the newspaper man remarked:

"Senator, you may not remember it, but you owe me a debt."
"How is that?" asked the Senator.

"Do you remember the young man that got you into the convention one day in 1880?"
"Why, of course I do; you are not the young man, are you? If you are I do owe you a debt, sure enough."

The conversation brought out the incident. Governor Cullom forgot his ticket one day, and, when he told the outer doorkeeper that he was Governor of the State the man would not believe him. Governor Cullom affected the hayseed in his manners and dress in those days. He insisted on being let in, and, finally, the guard consented to take him as far as the inner door There he presented him to the young door keeper, saying:

"Here's a fellow who says he's Shelby Cullom; I don't take any stock in him, but if you're a mind to let him in you can do

The Governor took the matter good naturedly, and assured the door-keeper that he really was Shelby Cullom.
"There's a lot of fellows that come here with just such stories as that every day," said the door-keeper. "If you're Governor Cullom you ought to have a ticket."

After some arguing, however, the door-keeper said: "Pil tell you what Pil do: You come inside and I'll tell you mighty quick whether you're a fraud or not."

The Governor said all right, and followed the young man to the platform. When they were where they could get a good look at the people sitting there the door-keeper said: "Now do you see any body you

Before the Governor had time to pick out any one Bob Ingersoll saw him and called

"Hev. Shelby, come over here." "It's all right, Governor," said the door-keeper, "and I'm sorry I made you any trouble, but you'll admit that I did the square thing.' "Yes, young man, you did, and I owe you a debt," said the Governor, and the mor-dent ended until to-day.

READING AND WRITING.

How to Increase the Happiness and Pleas ures of the Home Circle. Those accomplishments are the most excellent and most worthy of cultivation which contribute most largely to the happiwhich contribute most largely to the happiness of others, says the New York Ledger. I place that of reading well before every one of the arts which usually are so designated; and, certainly, had I the fairy's power to bestow on those I loved the gift which should most endear them to others not, of course, including good principle, good sense and good temper—I would give them the power of delighting their own family circle by reading and talking well. The former art especially is cultivated far too little for the health as well as the happi ness of young women; so much is it neglected that probably twenty can sing pleas ingly for every one that can read agreeably. Yet we can not doubt that a voice for singing is comparatively rare, and that almost any one who chooses to do so can so as to give pleasure. Per-there are two reasons for the general neglect of this charming accomplishment. In the first place, we are far too apt to cultivate most carefully that which is to please in society, and to neglect those arts which can contribute to domestic happiness. We sing for our acquaintances to excite the admiration, or, it may be, the envy of people who see us but seldom, and would not greatly care if they never saw us again. But in being able to read well a again. But in being able to read wen a good book or paper, we are only likely to give pleasure to an invalid father or brother, or perhaps a group of younger brothers and sisters. But to increase the happiness of but one of our home circle ought to be a source of far more satisfac tion to us than the applause of any stranger whatever. To while away the dreary hours of pain and sickness—to charm a group of young listeners into forgetfulness group of young listeners into lorgertumes of the rain or snow that is preventing them from enjoying their usual sports—these are reasonable of the rain or snow that is preventing them from enjoying their usual sports—these are reasonable of the rain or snow that is preventing them from enjoying their usual sports—these are Young Lady. A youthful newspaper friend of mine, writes the Chicago Journal's sidewalk stroller, who is so fond of the pastime of "guying" his acquaintances that he fre-quently verges upon pure fabrication, de-livered himself last night of a piece of audacity so monstrous that the recollection of it even now enchains my attention and re-fuses to be dismissed. A lively little party of five or six had gathered in the parlor after dinner, and, after running a gamut of other subjects, the conversation had turned upon newspapers. Among other things, it is my youthful friend's duty to clip from the "exchanges" every day a column of witticism of various length and grades of ex-cellence, and select the best of them for publication, under a suitable headline in his publication, under a suitable headline in his paper next morning. It was with a happy knowledge of this in view that one of the company, a bright and attractive girl, interrogated the youth in this wise: "Mr. M——," quoth she, "how can you possibly find the ideas to write a whole column of those from your groups awary day"?" funny paragraphs every day?" The young man winked stealthily at me and responded: "Oh, it's very simple, I assure you. I just light my pipe, put my heels on the desk and think hard for five minutes. Then the ideas come, and I generally manage to write the whole column in about three-quarters of an hour." The young lady was duly im-pressed, but inquired: "What does the little line at the bottom of each paragraph mean? It's always the name of some other paper, isn't it?" For one instant the young rascal was staggered, but recovered himself instantly and answered with sublime effrontery: "Oh yes, I just stack the name of any paper I happen to think of at the end of each paragraph, so as to add a little diver-sity to the column. People think they're get-ting the best in the market then, you know." The young lady was perfectly satisfied and accepted the explanation in the best of faith. A veteran journalist who was present muttered something sotto voce about having heard the best lie of the century.
